

Tying Values with Vows

Your wedding is the most important day of your life. You can make the day even more meaningful by purchasing memberships to Corolla Wild Horse Fund for your guests in lieu of favors. Instead of a token that they may or may not use, eat, or even remember a year from now, your gift will make them an important part of saving a dying breed.

Giving back is an intimate portrait of yourselves that reflects the values that you both share. Being socially conscious is contagious and your example will inspire others to do the same.

Saving the Horse of Kings

The Colonial Spanish Mustang has roamed the beaches of the Outer Banks for nearly 500 years. Brought here by Spanish conquistadors exploring the New World, they have survived centuries of hurricanes and fierce nor'easters. In 1926, there were five to six thousand wild horses from the southern core banks to Corolla. Only about 100 now remain on the northernmost beaches of Corolla.

The Corolla Wild Horse Fund is the nonprofit organization charged with physically managing, caring for, and protecting the herd. Contributions are tax deductible and help to provide medical care to sick and injured horses as well as care and training for horses that must be removed from the beach and eventually placed in adoptive homes.

The American wild horse is rapidly disappearing and the Banker strain of Colonial Spanish Mustang is now on the critical breed list. The next category is extinction.

You can celebrate generously by giving your wedding guests the opportunity to be a part of saving these magnificent horses.

When you Save a Wild Mustang When You Marry, the bride and groom will be given the opportunity to see the horses in the wild and the horses can be part of your wedding photography. You are guaranteed to have the most unique wedding photos of all!
